

City Food Symposium, 12th December 2016

PROGRAMME

Chair: Professor Corinna Hawkes, Centre for Food Policy, City, University of London

0915-1000 Registration

PART 1. 1000-1245 REFLECTING ON THE PAST 25 YEARS OF FOOD POLICY

1000 Welcome: Professor Theo Farrell, Dean, School of the Arts and Social Sciences, City, University of London. Launch of new report: Centre For Food Policy: Teaching, Researching and Influencing Food Policy

1015-1045 Presentation: Professor Tim Lang - How Has Food Policy Changed and Developed in the Last 25 Years? Where Are We Now?

1045-1230 Panel: How far have we come in food policy, what have we learned and what do we need to do differently?

- David Barling, Professor, Director, Centre for Agriculture, Food and Environmental Management, University of Hertfordshire; formerly Reader, Centre for Food Policy
- Kath Dalmeny, Chief Executive, Sustain: the alliance for better food and farming and alumna, Masters in Food Policy, Centre for Food Policy
- Liz Dowler, Emeritus Professor of Food and Social Policy, Department of Sociology at the University of Warwick
- Terry Marsden, Professor, Environmental Policy and Planning, Cardiff University
- Aileen Robertson, Professor, Metropolitan University College, Copenhagen, Denmark; former Director of Nutrition, World Health Organization Office for Europe

1230-1330 LUNCH, served in the lobby of the Oliver Thompson Lecture Theatre. There is limited seating in the lobby. Lunch can be taken back onto the lecture theatre.

PART 2. 1330–1715 HOW SHOULD WE DO FOOD POLICY IN THE FUTURE?
VISIONING FOR AN INCLUSIVE APPROACH IN THE 21ST CENTURY

1330-1345 Performance by the People's Food Knowledge Collective, featuring Hull Solidarity and Nomad. How can we learn to do food policy better through better understanding the lived experiences of food?

1345-1500 Audience Voices on Imagining the Future

Audience vision on how to do food policy better in the future focusing on three questions:

- How would you like to see food policy being done differently in the 21st century?
- Who should it involve?
- How should it involve them?

Feedback from delegates collected from the survey and the post-its on the day will be presented and discussed.

1500-1515 TEA

1515-1615 Bringing People's Voices Into A More Inclusive Food Policy For The 21st Century

This panel will ask: what does placing people at the centre of policy-making look like in practice? What difference does bringing people's voices into food policy make? How do we do it? It will look at practical examples of where involving people in food policy has made a difference.

- Carlo Cafiero, Director, Voices of the Hungry, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations
- Karen den Hertog, Programme Manager, Amsterdam Healthy Weight Programme, Amsterdam
- Cecilia Tacoli, Principal Researcher, Human Settlements, International Institute for Environment and Development
- Tom Wakeford, Centre for Agroecology, Water and Resilience, Coventry University
- Dee Butterly, Landworkers' Alliance

1615-1645 Audience Voices

Priorities for how to do food policy differently. Delegates will be asked to vote using clickers in real time to identify priorities for how to do food policy differently.

1645-1715 Closing presentation: Prof Corinna Hawkes. A Vision Of Inclusive Food Policy For The 21st Century. A reflection on the implications of recent world events for how we should do food policy in the future and the need to connect policy with people, including a summary of the day.

1715 RECEPTION: Mince pies and mulled wine - all welcome.

Do remember to complete your feedback form and place in the box on your way out!