PROGRAMME SUMMARY

Focus:

- How is political power distributed in different societies around the world?
- Why are some countries becoming democratic while democracy is failing in others?
- In what ways does violence shape contemporary politics and political behaviour?
- How do policymakers, politicians and societies analyse and manage political risks?
- How has the influence of business groups, labour organizations, and social movements evolved in recent decades?
- How has globalization reshaped state and market institutions in different countries?
- How do political institutions influence the level of inequality in different countries?
- When do social protests against governments emerge and when do they succeed?

City, University of London is offering the BSc Politics to provide you with the theoretical tools, analytical skills, and empirical evidence that will help you address these and other key questions that are central to understanding politics in the 21st century.

This programme will train you to understand and to analyse the key political problems and issues that face states and societies across the world in a systematic and comparative way. Issues of uneven economic growth and rising inequality, political violence, civil war and a shifting balance of global economic and political power require a form of analysis that is both theoretically rigorous and empirically informed. The programme is geared to producing graduates who have the understanding, skills and experience to be attractive to a range of governmental, corporate, academic (postgraduate studies), non-governmental and international organisations engaged in addressing these challenges and opportunities. The degree programme will equip you with the tools they need to be competitive in a world where strategic thinking is prized, sensitivity to risk and uncertainty valorized, and analytical rigor coveted.

Building upon a long-standing scholarly tradition of academic studies in the discipline of politics, the BSc Politics will introduce you to the key debates and perspectives associated with the study of politics such as the characteristics of democracies and alternative political regimes; the functioning and diversity of key political institutions; the connection between citizens, political parties, and the media; the relationship between domestic political systems and economic outcomes; the intersection between political processes at the national and global level.

At the same time, the BSc Politics recognizes how in today's increasingly interconnected world, understanding the central issues and trends that characterize 21st century politics requires students to look beyond the borders of any single nation and to adopt a global perspective.

A distinguishing feature of the BSc (Hons) Politics is that it integrates the study of national and international politics, exploring how domestic politics influence global phenomena. You will be taught by leading academics how contemporary states, governments and societies operate. The BSc Politics will also give you the skills to compare national experiences in different countries, which will greatly benefit your knowledge of present-day politics. Apart from theoretical and analytical skills, the programme will give you the opportunity to improve your employability skills. Activities such as micro-placements at think tanks and other organizations, drafting policy reports and media editorials, coupled with professional support to steer your future career are carefully designed to boost your career trajectory.

The BSc Politics will challenge you to apply the key theories and approaches that characterize the study of politics to explore the diversity of political processes and political systems across different countries and regions of the world. From this perspective, you will benefit from the location of this programme within a department with a strong international focus, such as the Department of International Politics at City, University of London. The breadth of expertise in terms of geographical contexts and issue areas that characterize the Department of International Politics will make your undergraduate studies a very enriching experience.

On successful completion of this programme you will have developed a deep understanding of the main forces which are shaping the functioning of politics across the world, and will have acquired a wide range of transferable skills suitable both for a diverse range of careers in the public and private sector as well as for further study and life-long learning.

Aims

This programme’s aims are:

1) To provide you with a high quality, challenging, and up-to-date education in Politics reflecting rapid political change in an increasingly complex and globalized political world.

2) To introduce you to the main theories, analytical approaches and methods of contemporary political studies, including a number of sub-disciplines which include political violence, policy analysis, comparative politics, and international relations.

3) To provide you with broad coverage of the diversity of actors, institutions, processes, ideas and issues that shape politics in a variety of countries, regions, and cultures.

4) To enable you to develop the analytical skills required to examine and critically assess the complex structure of relationships in the context of 21st century politics.

5) To prepare you for a diverse range of careers in the public and private sector, as well as for further study and life-long learning.

Progression

• Year 1 (Introduction): The purpose of the first year is to establish your first contact with the academic study of real-world politics by introducing you to the main issues, concepts, and theoretical perspectives in the discipline of politics and related sub-disciplines such as comparative politics and political theory. You will also begin to appreciate the diversity of political systems in various national and regional contexts that will be covered in this degree programme. During this year, you will also begin to gain some of the skills required to succeed in your study, such as the tools to write appropriately constructed essays, to interact in small group seminars, to make oral presentations, and to produce and analyse quantitative data. In addition to the core modules in Politics, as a student of the BSc Politics, you will be able to choose from a wide range of modules that are directly relevant to the study of politics and which are offered by the Department of International Politics and other departments in the School of Arts and Social Science. Among these electives is the option to take a foreign language course.

• Year 2 (Consolidation): During the second year you will consolidate the skills and body of knowledge gained in the first year to then analyse comparatively politics in a variety of industrialised and developing nations, and emerging powers. In parallel, a number of elective modules geared towards studying fundamental political phenomena will consolidate your knowledge of political violence, political risk analysis, and the role of religion in contemporary politics. During this year you will acquire more systematically the skills required to engage with the discipline as a researcher. In particularly this will take the shape of a requirement to write a 5,000-word long research paper on a topic of your own choosing within the field of politics/comparative politics (IP2021 module on Scholarly Writing). Also, as part of the ‘micro-placement’ scheme, you will have the opportunity to work for a limited period of time at a think/tank or another political organization that will improve your political skills in practice. In addition, to the core and elective modules offered by the International Politics Department, you will be able to access a selection of modules offered by other Departments in the School of Arts and Social Sciences of relevance to the study of Politics.

• Year 3 (Specialisation): During the final year of undergraduate study you will have the opportunity to use the knowledge and skills accumulated during the first two years of your degree to specialise on topics and sub-fields of your interest. First, through the production of a sustained piece of independent research on a subject of your choice within the study of politics/comparative politics (Final Year Dissertation Project, 10,000 words long), as a means to allow you to experience the challenge and reward of independent research and thought. Second, besides the dissertation, you will be entirely free to choose elective modules in the areas that interest you the most. In particular, elective modules in the third year will expect you to build upon the knowledge developed in previous years to bear at length on a wide range of theoretical and empirical issues in the diverse yet increasingly interconnected world of politics.

Micro-Placement

Most Undergraduate Programmes in the School of Arts and Social Sciences work with the Careers Service to offer you the opportunity to complete a Micro-placement non-credited module whilst you study with us. This is a short placement opportunity, not related directly to your area of study, to help you develop your employability skills and gain work experience whilst completing your degree. Placements on the scheme are competitive and subject to availability.

WHAT WILL I BE EXPECTED TO ACHIEVE?

On successful completion of this programme, you will be expected to be able to:

Knowledge and understanding:
1. Demonstrate fundamental knowledge of the main theoretical traditions, concepts, and models in the study of Politics. (Year 1)
2. Identify key differences in the political systems and institutions of a range of countries across the world, and have an appreciation of how these affect, and are affected by, local, regional and global, economic, cultural, religious, social and institutional forces (Years 1-2).
3. Demonstrate understanding of the utility of qualitative and quantitative research methods in understanding and investigating contemporary politics (Years 1-3).
4. Develop systematic knowledge of the role of political violence and its consequences on modern societies (Years 1-3).
5. Develop the critical and intellectual abilities required to think critically about political institutions, processes and behaviours within different national, sub-national, and regional contexts (Year 3)

Skills:
1. Develop a capacity to analyse academic texts and describe accurately theoretical hypotheses and arguments (Year 1)
2. Communicate ideas clearly and effectively, both in writing and orally (Years 1-3).
3. Work under pressure, manage your own time and meet deadlines (Years 1-3)
4. Develop the necessary transferable skills required for personal and professional development, and for successful employment or further study (Years 1-3)
5. Critically evaluate the strengths and limitations of arguments and information from a number of different primary and secondary data sources in order to understand complex political phenomena (Year 2)
6. Construct, analyse and evaluate different forms of argument on sound evidential and theoretical reasoning and advance these effectively in writing on and discussion (Years 2-3)
7. Develop a capacity for independent study and research, including a critical awareness of research design and capacity to effectively apply qualitative and quantitative methods of political analysis (Year 3)
Values and attitudes:
1. Demonstrate respect and engage with those who do not share your own political values (Years 1-3)
2. Demonstrate a habit of reflection and independent study (Years 1-3).
3. Produce written materials that indicate in a precise and honest manner what is your own work and what is attributable to others (Years 1-3).
4. Reflect on and manage effectively your own learning and make use of constructive feedback (Years 1-3).

HOW WILL I LEARN?

The educational aims are achieved through a combination of lectures, interactive sessions (such as practical workshops and small group classes), and use of online learning tools. Lectures are used to provide commentary on and explanation of key content areas. The interactive sessions are used to develop understanding of these areas by inviting you to raise questions and participate in the debate and by providing guidance for further study. Acquisition of knowledge and understanding is also promoted through other interactive activities and independent study. You are expected to have read in advance of the seminars and, when required, to complete the tasks/exercises assigned in advance. The latter may include oral presentations of your essay plans, and group activities designed to study the concepts explained by the lecturers in a more practical manner. Online resources, primarily Moodle, City’s e-learning platform will be a key resource for tracing useful information (i.e. reports, reading lists, news clippings, discussion forum, questions and answers on key debates or essays etc).

The BSc Politics will include an average of 10 contact hours per week (8 teaching face to face hours and two office hours with module leaders and tutors). This amounts to around 200 contact hours during the academic year. In addition, you will be expected to undertake extensive reading and independent study in order to broaden and deepen your knowledge, understand the topics covered in lectures and classes and to prepare yourself for the interactive sessions where you will be invited to ask questions and to participate in in-depth discussions with other students and teaching staff. Lecturing and teaching is supported by a personal tutorial, mentoring and supervision system, and by an organised research seminar series with outside speakers, both professional and academic.

The BSc Politics involves two type of research dissertations: a 5,000 word research paper at the end of the second year, and a 10,000 word dissertation submitted at the end of your third year of undergraduate study. Topics for both research projects are chosen by you, in consultation with module leaders and supervisors. These two research exercises are designed to help you advance your conceptual and analytical knowledge in the field of Politics as well as transferable skills that will become an asset when entering the professional world or embarking in further studies.

WHAT TYPES OF ASSESSMENT AND FEEDBACK CAN I EXPECT?

The attainment of the intended learning outcomes will be assessed throughout a variety of summative and formative assessments. Assessment is by coursework (assessed essays and assignments), unseen examinations, oral presentations, role-playing exercises, research projects, and other types of assessment methods. Throughout the programme you will receive continuous written feedback, both on formative and summative assessments.

First year students will be assessed primarily through a combination of unseen exams and different types of essays (such as book reviews, country reports and critical reviews). Second year students will be assessed through exams, essays (such as extended essays, research proposals) and oral presentations. As part of the third year independent dissertation project, you will receive supervision and the opportunity to develop research methods and writing skills.

Assessment Criteria are descriptions, based on the intended learning outcomes, of the skills, knowledge or attitudes that you need to demonstrate in order to complete an assessment successfully, providing a mechanism by which the quality of an assessment can be measured. Grade-Related Criteria are descriptions of the level of skills, knowledge or attributes that you need to demonstrate in order to achieve a certain grade or mark in an assessment, providing a mechanism by which the quality of an assessment can be measured and placed within the overall set of marks. Assessment Criteria and Grade-Related Criteria will be made available to you to support you in completing assessments. These may be provided in programme handbooks, module specifications, on the virtual learning environment or attached to a specific assessment task.

Feedback on assessment

Feedback both in summative and formative forms of assessment will be provided in line with our Assessment and Feedback Policy. Students will receive continuous formative feedback. For summative assessments you will normally be provided with feedback within three weeks of the submission deadline or assessment date. This would normally include a provisional grade or mark. For end of module examinations or an equivalent significant task (e.g. an end of module project), feedback will normally be provided within four weeks. The timescale for feedback on final year projects or dissertations may be longer. The full policy can be found at: https://www.city.ac.uk/__data/assets/pdf_file/0008/68921/assessment_and_feedback_policy.pdf

Assessment Regulations

In order to pass your Programme, you should complete successfully or be exempted from the relevant modules and assessments and will therefore acquire the required number of credits. You also need to pass each Programme Stage of your Programme in order to progress to the following Programme Stage.

For how each Programme Stage of your programme is weighted, please see ‘What Award Can I Get?’ below.

The Pass mark for each module is 40%.

If you fail an assessment component or a module, the following will apply:

1. Compensation: where you fail up to a total of one sixth of the total credits of a Programme Stage at first or resit attempt, you may be allowed compensation if:
- Compensation is permitted for the module involved (see the What will I Study section of the programme specification), and
- It can be demonstrated that you have satisfied all the Learning Outcomes of the modules in the Programme Stage, and
- A minimum overall mark of no more than 10% below the module pass mark has been achieved in the module to be compensated, and
- An aggregate mark of 40% has been achieved for the Programme Stage.

Where you are eligible for compensation at the first attempt, this will be applied in the first instance rather than offering a resit opportunity.

If you receive a compensated pass in a module you will be awarded the credit for that module. The original component marks will be retained in the record of marks and your original module mark will be used for the purpose of your Award calculation.

2. Resit: where you are not eligible for compensation at the first attempt, you will be offered one resit attempt.

If you are successful in the resit, you will be awarded the credit for that module. The mark for each assessment component that is subject to a resit will be capped at the pass mark for the module. This capped mark will be used in the calculation of the final module mark together with the original marks for the components that you passed at first attempt.

If you do not meet the pass requirements for a module and do not complete your resit by the date specified you will not progress to the next Programme Stage and the Assessment Board will require you to be withdrawn from the Programme.

If you fail to meet the requirements for a particular Programme Stage or the Programme, the Assessment Board will consider whether you are eligible for an Exit Award as per the table below.

If you would like to know more about the way in which assessment works at City, please see the full version of the Assessment Regulations at:

WHAT WILL I STUDY?

Programme Stage 1

Level 4 (120 credits): 6 core modules plus 2 elective modules (all modules are 15 credits).

During the first year the core module “Introduction to Politics” establishes your first contact with the academic study of real-world politics. Two additional core modules will present you with key issues, concepts, and theoretical perspectives in the study of the sub-disciplines of comparative politics (“Puzzles of Comparative Politics”) and political theory (“Introduction to Political Theory”). These core conceptual modules are complemented by the core “Emerging Powers in a Changing World” module where you will begin to appreciate the contribution that countries like China, India and Brazil, commonly known as emerging powers, make to what are often Western-centric understandings of how politics works. This module on emerging powers will be your first contact with one of the key characteristics of the BSc Politics; that is, an emphasis on the study of political processes and structures in a variety of regional and national contexts in order to challenge Western-centric understandings of how countries and regions work politically speaking.

During this year you will also begin to gain some of the skills required to succeed in your studies, such as the tools to write appropriately constructed essays, to interact in small group seminars, and to convey in oral format complex arguments (typically in the form of presentations).

Finally, the two core methodological modules ("Lies, Damn Lies, and Statistics" and "Producing Social Data") will familiarise you with the bases of quantitative methods of analysis in social sciences.

In addition to these six compulsory modules you will need to choose two modules among a variety of electives offered by the International Politics Department and other Departments in the School of Arts and Social Sciences of direct relevance to the study of Politics.

Language for Specific Purposes: The language is taught in the context of your main subject in Media/Journalism/Social Sciences.

French, German, Spanish, Russian are studied in this format.

Language Breadth Modules: The language is taught for general purposes.

Arabic and Mandarin are studied in this format.

Programme Stage 2

Level 5 (120 credits): 2 core modules plus 6 elective modules (all modules are 15 credits).

During the second year, you will consolidate your understanding of the key theories, approaches, and concepts that are central to the analysis of political processes from a comparative perspective through the core module “Advanced Topics in Comparative Politics”. Moreover, a variety of elective modules will allow you to complement the skills and knowledge acquired through this core course with the study of the politics of a number of industrialised and developing nations, and emerging powers.

During this year you will also acquire more systematically the skills required to engage with the discipline as researcher through the core module “Scholarly Writing” (IP2021). At the end of this module you will produce an extended piece of research (5,000 words long research paper).

In addition to these two core modules you will be able to choose six elective modules. Of these, at least 4 (60 credits) will have to be chosen from a list of modules pertaining to the field of politics/comparative politics with the purpose of building your specialised knowledge in the subject field you are studying. You will also have the opportunity to improve your employability skills by working on a project at a think tank/political organization. The core elective modules include (15 credits each):

IP2037 Comparative Asian Politics
IP2031 Comparative Political Economy
IP2036 Politics of the USA
IP2040 Political Risk Analysis
IP2041 Violent politics: riots, civil wars and state repression
IP2042 Political Psychology: Emotion & Reason in Politics

The remaining electives can be chosen from a broader selection of modules in related areas offered by the Department of International Politics, other departments in the School of Arts and Social Sciences, and one Language Module.

Completion of a Micro-placement will be reported on your University transcript as a module code, UA200.

Programme Stage 3

Level 6 (120 credits): One core module (45 credits) and 5 elective modules (total equivalent of 75 credits).

In the Third Year, you will be able to apply the skills you have acquired during the first two years to the production of a sustained piece of independent research on a subject of your choice within the field of politics/comparative politics while also improving your employability skills (Final Year Dissertation Project – IP3017).

Besides the dissertation, you are entirely free to choose five elective modules in the areas that interest you the most and in doing so, specialise within the wider field of politics/comparative politics. Elective modules in the third year will allow you to use the knowledge developed in previous years to engage at length with a wide range of theoretical and empirical issues of your interest within the diverse yet increasingly interconnected world of politics.

TO WHAT KIND OF CAREER MIGHT I GO ON?

Beyond providing access to the discipline-specific body of knowledge associated with the study of Politics, the programme places emphasis on gaining a number of core skills relevant for both the public and private sector job markets as well as further education (postgraduate degrees). Graduates will be suited to a wide range of career options, from political organisations, policy development, careers in government, research institutions, the media and communication, civil society, teaching as well as a range of careers in the private sector.

If you would like more information on the Careers support available at City, please go to: http://www.city.ac.uk/careers/for-students-and-recent-graduates.

WHAT STUDY ABROAD OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE?

As an Undergraduate student you can undertake a period of study abroad whilst completing the programme. This is possible through the SASS Exchange Programme, a year of study at one of our European and/or international partner universities via a sandwich year, which is undertaken between completing Programme Stage 2 and entering Programme Stage 3, extending the degree to four years.

The resulting degree title awarded would be: BSc Politics with Study Abroad.

Participation in the SASS Exchange Programme is through an application process. You are encouraged to investigate the opportunities available to you within your Department in your first year at City.

Information and support for this programme is provided by the SASS Exchanges Team (SASS.Exchanges@city.ac.uk).

WHAT PLACEMENT OPPORTUNITIES ARE AVAILABLE?

As an Undergraduate student you can undertake a one year work placement whilst completing the programme. This is possible through joining the Integrated Professional Training Programme, which is a sandwich year that is taken between completing Programme Stage 2 and entering Programme Stage 3, extending the degree to four years.

The resulting degree title awarded would be: BSc Politics with Integrated Professional Training.

In identifying relevant placement opportunities you should consider your long-term plans for employment; whether the work placement proposed is relevant to final year modules; whether it might provide experience on which a project could be based.

Information and support for this programme is provided by the SASS Placements Team (SASS.Placements@city.ac.uk).

1) You should discuss your plans with the relevant Department Placement Officer at the earliest opportunity, preferably during the autumn term of their second year.

2) The work placement must extend over a minimum of 9 months and a maximum of 12 months (including holidays allowed by the employing body). The Placement should normally run between the 1st September and the 31st August in the following year.

3) The placement must be approved by City as providing suitable supervision and training.

4) Participant students are required to pay an administrative charge to cover the School's costs associated with the work placement. This will be in the form of a reduced tuition fee for the placement year, which will cover continued enrolment with City and access to all of its facilities.

HOW DO I ENTER THE PROGRAMME?

Entry Requirements
- 'A' Level: Grades BBB or 120 UCAS tariff points. A-Level General Studies and A Level Critical Studies are not accepted
- GCSE: Minimum Grade 4 (C) in GCSE English and Mathematics or Statistics.
- IB: 30 points including 5,5,5 from three Higher Level subjects (no specific subjects required).

Other UK qualifications:
- BTEC National Diploma (DDM required)
- Cambridge Pre-U Principal Subjects
- Advanced Diploma (plus appropriate A Levels)
- Scottish Advanced Highers
- Welsh Diploma (plus appropriate A Levels)

International Qualifications
We accept a wide range of international qualifications for direct entry to our programmes.

English Language Requirements
- IELTS 6.5 overall with a minimum of 6.0 in each component
- PTE Academic: 58 overall with a minimum of 51 in each component

Second-year transfers
We accept students transferring from other universities for second year entry on a case-by case basis. If you wish to apply for second-year entry please be aware that you must:

- Currently be studying on a course in an equivalent subject area.
- Have achieved grades equal to the entry requirements for first-year entry (A Levels, international qualifications, foundation years, access courses, etc).
- Have covered sufficiently similar content to that of our first year students.
- Be gaining or have gained at least a 2:1 in every module in your current first year. You must provide official documentation of this as evidence (e.g. university transcript).

If you feel you meet these requirements then please apply through UCAS as early as possible (transfer students normally apply when their first semester exam results are published) and we can then assess your eligibility. Please be aware you will need to select your 'point of entry' as year two.

Please note: For direct second-year entrants the overall degree classification will be based on the marks obtained at City, University of London only, with the weighting of 33/67 between the second and third year. Marks previously obtained will not be used in the degree classification.
